

6

Unexpected Sources of Indoor Dust

(You won't believe them!)

Household pests

Dust mites, fleas, cockroaches, and all other uninvited guests can make your home dustier! Their poop becomes part of the dust, but also their dead bodies! Gross, right?

HVAC ducts and small gaps

Air (and airborne particles) enter through small gaps in your home, even with closed windows. But also, your air conditioning system is sucking air into your home!

Opened windows and doors

Most indoor dust comes from outside. Pollen, soil, and other airborne particles fly through open windows and doors!

Yourself

Dead skin flakes, hair, cloth lint, nail polish bits, hair spray residue... all end up being dust. You are a source of dust too!

Most things inside your home

Upholstered furniture, carpets, and curtains leave tiny fibers behind that eventually become dust. Even food crumbs can end up like dust.

Pets

Four-legged members of your household can also be a source of dust. Not only dander but also bits of dried saliva ends up as dust!

Source:

Where Does Dust Come From? Guide to Sources in House and Solutions
www.molekule.science

Where Does All The Dust In Your House Come From?
www.allergystore.com

